MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS WILL BE HELD IN FEBRUARY
In response to many enquiries as to when the municipal elections will take place, we take this opportunity of informing our readers that the elections for mayor, councillors and school trustees will take place on the second Monday in February, 1923, nomination day being the first Monday in February.

BOYS' PARLIAMENT TO MEET SOON
Blairmore now has two more members of parliament. Clare Snyder and John Patterson, members of the local Tuxis Square, have been elected on the Constructive ticket to represent this district in the Boys' Provincial Parliament. The next session is on December 27th, 28th and 29th and both the local members will be in attendance. The sessions are held in the Parliament Buildings at Edmonton and Bray Powell is now the Premier. There are two parties in the running, the Constructive and the Re-Constructive, the former being in power at the present time.
Clare Snyder has received a minister's portfolio, being minister of social affairs.

MAYOR IS DELEGATED TO EDMONTON

The regular meeting of the town council took place on Monday night last, very little business being transacted.

The minutes of several previous regular and special meetings were approved as read and the following accounts were passed for payment: J. Shafer $92.50, G. Lang $16.00, Coal supply and sundries $100.50, Burroughs & Co. $9.50, West Canadian Collieries $428.50, Registrar of Land Titles $70.00, C. Fauer $10.00. Dept. of Public Works, town's portion of cost of new bridge over Lyon Creek $1112.41.

A statement was attached to this latter account, showing the total cost of the structure to have been $3387.25. Communication from the provincial health department asked for report from the local board of health. As the town has no such board, on account of inability to get anyone to act, no action could be taken in the matter save inform the department of reason why no board of health.

Communication from Solicitor Putnam advised re cases of Mancini and Morino et al.

Communication was received from the deputy minister of education, acknowledging receipt of town's appeal in connection with proposed increase of minimum educational tax, and assuring of the department's serious consideration of the matter.

Mayor McLeod was elected a delegate to attend the convention of the Union of Alberta Municipalities, to be held at Edmonton this Thursday and Friday.

Council was informed of proposal of a number of enthusiastic citizens to clear the main roads of snow between Blairmore and neighboring towns to the east and west, towards which it was asked that the town contribute support financially to the extent of $10.00. It was pointed out that the snow storm of several days had made the roads impassable, so that Blairmore was practically isolated, and that the opening up of the road at this time would permit people from other towns to come in by sleigh or auto to do business or take in the excitement.

Several councillors were strongly in favor of the town granting assistance, while Councillors J. A. McDonald, J. Angus McDonald and W. McVey, registered their opposition.

Councillor J. A. McDonald felt that opening up the roads to neighboring towns would be doing a good turn to the Yellow Pennant Jimmy line, an outfit which he admitted came to Blairmore and practically ran him out of the lively business.

Councillor J. Angus McDonald felt that as local business enterprises were to benefit from people coming in from outside points, the business people interested should finance the opening of the roads.

Councillor McVey gave no reason for registering a negative vote.

Councillors Morency and Morgan and Mayor McLeod were strongly in favor of taking action to assist, the former going so far as to state that if the council did not see the wisdom of supporting the movement, he himself would come through with the paltry ten dollars asked from the town.

The voters' list was approved as presented.

Mr. Cartwright, representing the Mackenzie Estate, appeared before the council with a proposition to assist in relieving the properties of that estate from the burden of taxes against them. Mr. Cartwright asked for an extension of time to the end of 1923, to give him an opportunity of paying off the taxes. He was informed that as the properties were all included in the tax recovery return and practically forfeited to the town, it was doubtful in the minds of the council if the proposition could be accepted. However, advice from the town's solicitor would be taken in the matter.

Mr. Cartwright further proposed to erect a number of small cottages here next year, to be offered for sale or rent.

The Mackenzie Estate involves some 187 lots.

NOT BY A JUGFULL!
Lethbridge boasts of being the coldest spot in the west on Sunday night last, when the mercury hovered around 30 degrees below zero. At Blairmore, at the same time the mercury touched the 42 degrees below zero mark, which was the coldest experienced here in years.

CHAPTER I

The Coming of the Sheep

From his seat on the top of a high ridge, Gordon Wade looked into the bowl-shaped valley beneath him, with an expression of amusement on his sunburned face. "Gazing through a narrow opening in the hills, and immediately spreading far over the grass of the valley, were sheep, hundreds, thousands of them. Even where he sat, a good quarter mile above them, the air was rank with the peculiar smell of the animals he detected, and their ceaseless bleating, lowing, bawling, sounded like the roar of surf on a distant coast. Driven frantic by the appetizing smell of the sweet bunchgrass the like of which they had not seen in months, the sheep poured through the gap like a torrent of dirty, yellow water, urged on from the rear and sides by barking dogs and shouting herders."

Straightening his six feet of bone and muscle, the cattlemen stood up and stepped to the extreme edge of the rim-rock, with hardened countenance and gleaming eyes. A herder saw him standing there, in open all-houses against the sky line, and with many wild gestures pointed him out to his companions. "With a quick motion, Wade half raised his rifle from the crook of his arm toward his shoulder, and then snorted grimly at the herders scrambled for shelter. "Coyotes!" he muttered, reflecting that constant association with the beasts that such men tended, seemed to make cowards of them all.

With an ominous shake of his head, he went back on the ridge to his waiting horse, eager to bear word of the invasion to Santry, his ranch foreman and closest friend. Thrusting the short-barreled rifle into his scabbard beneath the stirrup-leather, the mounted man rode rapidly away.

Dusk was gathering as he pushed his way through the dense, which fringed Pike Creek and came out into the clearing which held his ranch buildings. Nestling in the foot of a high bluff with the clear waters of the creek sparkling a scant fifty yards from the door, the log ranch house remained hidden until one was almost upon it. "To the left, at the foot of a long slope, the corral and out-buildings were situated, while beyond them a range of snow-capped mountains rose in majestic grandeur. Back of the house, at the top of the bluff, a broad tableland extended for miles; this, with Crawling Water Valley, comprising the fine range land, on which fattened three thousand head of cattle, carrying Wade brand, the Double Arrow. Barely an hour before, the owner had surveyed the scene with more than satisfaction, exulting in the promise of prosperity it seemed to convey. Now all his business, future was threatened by the coming of the sheep.

After putting his horse in the corral, the ranch owner turned toward the house. As he walked slowly up the hill, he made a fine figure of a man; tall, straight, and bronzed like an Indian. His countenance in repose was frank and cheerful, and he walked with the free, swinging stride of an outdoor man in full enjoyment of bodily health and vigor. Entering the cabin by the open door, he passed through to the rear where a rafting of pots and pans and an appetizing smell of frying bacon told that supper was in progress.

Bill Santry was standing by the stove, turning the bacon in its sizzling grease, with a knock which told of much experience in camp cooking. The face which the lean and grizzled plainsman turned towards his friend was seamed by a thousand tiny wrinkles in the leathery skin, the result of years of exposure to all kinds of weather.

"Hello, Gordon!" he exclaimed. His pale blue eyes shined like pin points under the shaggy, gray brows. "You're back early, just in time for me to remark that if we were a pot-wrestler for this here outfit pretty darn quick, the boys'll be cookin' their own chunk. I'm blamin' if I'll herd this store much longer."

Wade smiled as he passed into the adjoining room to remove his spurs and change. "There's a Chinese cook up from town to dinner," he said.

Santry peered across the stove to watch him as he moved about his room. The week before, a large picture of an extremely beautiful girl, which she had sent to Wade and which at first he had seemed to consider his most precious possession, had fallen face downward on the table. Santry was curious to see how long it would be before Wade would set it up again, and he chuckled to himself when he saw that go move was made to do so. Wade had presented Santry to the girl some months before, when the two men were on a cattle-selling trip to Chicago, and the old plainsman had not cared for her, although he had recognized her beauty and knew that she was wealthy in her own right, and moreover was the only child of a famous United States Senator.

"There's thunder to pay over in the valley, Bill," Wade had produced "smoking," and rolled himself a cigarette as he watched the foreman cooking. "Sheep—thousands of them—are coming."

"What!" Santry straightened up with a jerk which nearly capsize the frying pan. "Sheep? On our range? You ain't kiddin' me?"

"Nope. Wish I was, but it's a fact. The sheep are feeding on the grass that we hoped to save against the winter. It's the Jensen outfit, I could make that out from where I stood."

"Hell!" Santry snarled angrily across the floor, Santry gazed into the twilight. That dirty, low-lived Sweden! But hell, his him, but I know his breed, the skunk! I'll know the veins in the old plainsman's throat as good as well as the pupils of his eyes contracted. "I'll run his blamed outfit out of the valley before moon tomorrow. I'll make Jensen wish."

"Steady, Bill!" Wade interposed, before the other could voice the threat. "Violence may come later on perhaps, but right now we must try to avoid a fight."

"But by the great horned toad!" Santry stretched out his powerful hands and slowly clenched his fingers. He was thinking of the pleasure it would give him to fasten them on Jensen.

"The thing puzzles me," Wade went on, flicking his cigarette through the window. "Jensen would never have come in here on his own initiative. He knows that we cowmen have controlled this valley since we came here, and he knows that we are no fighters. There's lots of good grass on the other side of the mountains, and he knows that as well as we do. Why does he take chances, then, on losing his stock, and maybe his herders by butting in here?"

"That's what I want to know," Santry said, though the thought were his own. "Answer me that!" By the great horned toad!"

"This country isn't what it was ten years ago, Bill. We're supposed to be here now, you know. To-morrow, Wade continued, "I'll ride over and have a talk with Jensen in the charge of the outfit. Maybe I can learn something. You stay here and keep quiet, and the rest quiet if they get kind of what's the matter and seem inclined to show fight. I've been in, a year, looking for trouble ever since we refused to let that fellow, Moran, set a foot-hold in the valley. It's his back on this, we've got a clever man on his feet."

There's another hombre I'd like awful well to get my hands on to," declared Santry, belligerently. "He's a city, greedy land shark! All right, all right! Needn't say nothin', don't you're the brains of this here outfit, an' 'bout you say the word, I'll be here. But when the time comes and you want a fight, just let me hear at him! When you just let me hear of these here crooks over the country, you whinger queer like to old Bill Santry. Until then, I'll wait. That's in."

He waved a warning finger at Wade. "That's up to a certain point! We don't want war, that's for sure. You understand me? But by the great horned toad, I ain't going to let no low, empty-headed, stinkin', sheep-herder! Swede wipe his feet on me. No, siree, not by no means."

Wade made no reply to this, and with a further admonitory shake of his grizzled head, the old man resumed his cooking.

"You're sure that Chink'll be over in the morning," he asked. "After a little, and Wade nodded abstractedly. "Cookin' ain't no job for a while man in this weather. 'Rat in' rock in Hell would be plumb cold alongside of it." He wiped the sweat from his forehead with his handkerchief. "Say, do you remember them bleucuts you made over in the Painted Horse?"

"The batch I ain't digested yet."

"Every time I cook a meal," he went on, "I think of the time Four Sak Jim hired out to wrangle, rough and ready, with a heart as big as a buck, but he wouldn't bend his knee to no man alive. The English jumper was all kinds of a swell, with money enough to burn a wet dog. For family reasons, he bought him a ranch and started to raise horses. He wore one of these here two-peaked hats, with a bow on top, and he always had an egg-screw into one eye."

THE SHINGLING FARMY

Pearl and Pimble.

If you read last week's story you will remember that it stopped just at Pearl (who is the Fishy at the End-of-the-Sea and who is a cousin of Stella) was telling Pimble, whom she had changed into a fish and who was now a fish, about the wonderful under-the-sea trip, about Toadfish. Pim had just seen one and had asked about it.

"Well," laughed Pearl, "I personally do not see much of interest, but perhaps you can tell me something. If you are really interested, every one is apt to think that their life, their duties and their troubles are more than interesting to others. Have you noticed that in life?"

"I should say I have," and Pimble really couldn't help grinning. "When wandering around I have often overheard elderly humans talk of their ill-humors and their troubles, and when I was sure they were the only people on earth who had 'insides.' I wonder why people love so much to talk about and compare operations and illnesses. If I were a human, I would try to always talk of pleasant and happy things for the more one thinks and talks of happy things, the more happy life seems to be. At least, I have found it so. But tell me, what and who is this Toadfish whom we just passed? It certainly looks like a Toad!" And the Brownies burst out laughing.

"The only thing about Toadfish that interests me," exclaimed the Fishy, "is that they are little, bony little fellows who are able to come to some rock or an adhesive disk on the front of their chests. This disk soon disappears and the little animal or fish (or whatever you want to call it) has to contrive its own protection, which generally consists of mixing itself up in its sandy surroundings, so as not to be easily noticed."

"Are they dangerous?"

"When grown," answered the Sea Fairy, "they are supposed to have strong poison fangs, which are almost as deadly as those of snakes; but I have never heard of their doing any damage whatsoever. See! Look out!"

"What's the matter?" demanded the Brownie. "I don't see anything out of the ordinary. What do you mean?"

The Mermals and Pimble had ceased swimming for a moment and had lowered themselves down to the sand, shell and plant covered bottom of the ocean.

"Do you mean to say that you do not see those Toadfish as they camouflage themselves?"

"Of course, I don't," Pimble laughingly answered. "If I could there would be no reason for their trying the camouflage game. The reason that they do it is because it is so well; why, even the Tiger in the jungle tries to go himself amongst the razor striped jungle grass. That much, Pearl dear, even I know."

"Well!" laughed Pearl, "as long as you seem to know so much, I feel that I can tell you something about the Toadfish. They are supposed to have poison fangs that are very deadly. I don't want you to get your self mixed up in any trouble. It is always best to be careful where there is any doubt and if one is not quite sure. Don't you think so?"

Pimble was swimming along very vigorously. "I suppose you are right!" he answered, after thinking a moment. "Well, let's see what comes across our path next."

THE EXPLANATION

Nature placed the growth-promoting "vitamins" in the oil of the cod-fish, this explains why

Scott's Emulsion is so definite in its help to a child's age. Latter-day science reveals that the "vitamins" are needed for normal growth.

A recent issue of "Ireland's Saturday Night" has a column article on the sporting record of W. A. B. Mr. Douglas has many friends in Canada who will be glad to learn of his appointment as President of the Northern Branch of the Irish Rugby Football Union. Mr. Douglas played rugby football for years with Knock Club, and was secretary to that body for a long time. After retiring from this position in 1913 he acted as referee in many important games. Strange Customs In Africa

How Relations of Bride and Groom Arrange Marriage

In a certain African tribe, when a young man desires a maiden in marriage he utters not a word himself, but sends his relations to arrange the matter for him. These seat themselves outside the house of the girl's parents, with their sandals crossed in their hands. Usually they are invited to enter—if not, there's nothing doing. On being asked their business they reply in a phrase which means, literally, "We have come to see you about a dog," and thereupon in all negotiations with regard to purchase price, etc., nothing but the dog is spoken of.

Where Rain Was Scarce

William Allen White, the Kansas editor, was talking about droughts: "One summer during a terrible drought," he said, "a tourist was passing through Arizona. He cut up one night in a town so dried up that even the trees had yellowed and withered. 'Does it never rain here?' the tourist said to the landlady of the hot, dusty hole. 'Rain!' said the landlady. 'Why stranger, there's five-year-old bull-frogs in this town now ain't never learned to swim yet.'"

Tombs Discovered In Syria

Have Been Sealed For Over Four Thousand Years

Two tombs about 4,000 years old have been discovered at Byblos, Syria, by the excavations being carried on under the direction of General Gouraud, and the French High Commissioner, according to the Paris correspondent to the London Times.

The age is established by the discovery in one of them of a barley, a curved sword with a gold handle, a seal of gold on which is engraved the Egyptian sparrow-hawk; a gold scarabaeus ring beautifully carved, and a balm box of obsidian, mounted in gold and bearing the name of Pharaoh Amenhotep of the twelfth dynasty.

This is stated to be the oldest inscription discovered in Syria, and proves that commercial relations between Syria, Greece and Egypt were already active 2,000 years before our era. The first recorded conquest of Syria by Egypt was made by Thutmose I (Tethmosis) of the eighteenth dynasty during the sixteenth century, B.C.

Etiquette From the Book

Instead of the usual boys' adventure book, Tommy's mother gave him a book of etiquette, and the results were satisfactory until one day his sister, starting to leave the room, found herself violently seized and thrown backward into the coal scuttle. "You ignorant little beast!" growled Tommy. "Don't you know that you should wait till a gentleman opens the door for you?" Argonaut.

Certain morbid conditions must exist in the stomach and intestines to encourage worms, and they will exist as long as these morbid conditions permit them. To be rid of them and spare the child suffering, use Miller's Worm Powders. They will correct the digestive irregularities by destroying the worms, conditions favorable to worms will disappear, and the child will have no more suffering from that cause.

Dr. Harvey, who discovered the circulation of the blood, is said to have been the first coffee drinker in England.

Praise For Canadian Literature
Canadian literature, taking it as whole, is well written, wholesome, and decidedly readable. It compares very favorably, if one omits a few great names of the past, with the literature of the Mother Country and the United States, and that is saying a good deal.—Ottawa Journal.

"It happens, however, that I have been asked to tackle the job. I have gone into it with a full knowledge of the conditions, and I propose to see it through, but success will only be achieved if I succeed in convincing you and the employees of the Canadian National Railways that you and they are justified in placing your confidence in the officers who administer this property and myself."

(Kindcard Review)
Edmonton city council purposes passing a by-law to prevent swearing. That will put the kibosh on golfers.

The Crown-Attorney of Essex, is investigating a dance held at Windsor in which the dancers were naked. That surely must be a nude departure.

That was a good crack an English member got off at the expense of the Glasgow socialist: "What Glasgow thinks today Moscow thinks tomorrow."

The Progressive candidate has dropped out of the fight in Lanark. Why not. With a Progressive in the field the Liberal candidate would not have a look-in.

Edward Johnston, the famous toner, was born in Guelph, but the New York Times claims him as an American. One touch of celebrity makes the whole continent kin.

An army of unemployed has gathered in London to ask the new government to pay them union wages until it provides them work. Who on earth or elsewhere started this doctrine that the government owes the people employment?

The Presbyterian Synod of Manitoba recently expressed the opinion that the low price of grain was due entirely to natural causes such as supply and demand but partly to the manipulation of the market by grain brokers. We always did think so but it is well to get it from an authoritative source.

Donna Law is an optimist if he expects to find tranquility upon a fretful propensities.

A professor of social economics in a Chicago University gave an address before the Empire Club, Toronto, one day last week, and the Star quotes this gem among his pithy sayings: "You never will have any industrial peace and you ought not to have any industrial peace as long as you make men work twelve hours a day, seven days in the week." But it might be worse if an attempt should be made to make men work twenty-five hours a day eight days a week. We mention this merely to show that we can make quite as sapient observations as any professor in social economics.

IT CAN BE DONE

If you can't be a pine on the top of the hill
Be a scrub in the valley—but be
The best little scrub by the side of the hill;
Be a bush if you can't be a tree.
If you can't be a bush, be a bit of the grass,
And some highway happier make;
If you can't be a muskie then just be a bass—
But the liveliest bass in the lake!
If you can't be a highway then just be a trail.
If you can't be the sun, be a star;
It isn't by size that you win or you fail—
Be the best of whatever you are!

THE PASS FOURTEEN YEARS AGO

(Frank Paper, 1908.)

May 21—The first fatal accident to sadden the community of Frank in many months occurred Saturday afternoon, when Ernest Lourme, one of the most popular and highly respected miners, fell a victim of a most distressing mishap. He was buried by a fall of coal while finishing up a piece of development work, preparatory to the early re-opening of the mine. He was formerly in the French army, having served with the 21st Dragoons.

The application of J. B. Rodd, of the Northern hotel, Bellevue, for liquor license was this week refused by the commissioners in session at Frank.

May 28—The West Canadian Collieries are resuming operations at Lillie, after a long shut-down. The resumption of natal mining in the Kootenays enables the property to operate. We understand that a big contract for coke has been secured that will ensure work at full time.

The government has started work blasting out the big rock dyke west of Coleman, to enable the Coleman people to have a road to the lake without going over the big hill north of town.

The Coleman village council has collected upwards of $1100 in poll taxes, which will be expended on roads and streets, thus evidencing the benefits a village may derive from the amendment to the village act passed at the recent session of the legislature.

It is stated that Proprietor Morton, of the Coleman hotel, having been refused a renewal of his license by the license commissioners, will retire from the management and that Al Mutt will take over the property and put a manager in charge. Mr. Mutt will spend about four thousand dollars in improving the premises.

The appeal of the Hillcrest Collieries Co. from the decision of the magistrate for breaking the Lemieux Act by locking out the men at the mine, was dismissed with costs by Judge Carpenter. W. C. Ives conducted the case for the miners, and E. P. McNeill, of Macleod, and T. B. Martin, of Frank, for the company.

The people of Frank were up against a decidedly anomalous situation for several days the first of the week, when something like a hundred billion trillion barrels of rain fell from the skies, causing the earth to fairly run with water and streams to race over their banks—and yet people went about with their tongues hanging out for want of a "drop" to drink. Several houses were flooded and Jack Miller's livery barn came near being washed away.

June 4—Mr. Huston, principal of the Frank school, drove down to Gillingham on Friday afternoon and was a Victoria Day guest of Mr. and Mrs. Carter.

George Scott arrived from Spokane this morning, accompanied by F. O. Adams and W. Watson, who will make a trip to the South Fork to examine the Carbon Hill property.

Passburg has been made a post office centre and W. Kerr, general merchant, has been appointed postmaster.

The marriage of Miss Beatie Baird to Mr. Walter Fisher was solemnized by Rev. T. M. Murray at the Alberta hotel, Blairmore, on Monday last. Mr. Fisher is butcher at the Frank market of P. Burns & Co.

June 11—F. M. Thompson, dry goods man at the Frank store of the Western Mercantile Co., has purchased the business of his employers at Lillie and assumed charge yesterday. Mr. Thompson is an A-1 business man and will, without a doubt, prosper handsomely in his new undertaking.

STRAYED—A cow, a heifer and a calf have strayed to the Blossomwood Ranch at Frank. Owner may secure same on proving property, and paying for this notice.—J. Holloway

LIQUOR ACT AMENDMENTS

Changes to the present British Columbia Liquor Control Act will be brought down in the House this week by Attorney-General Mason which are likely to open up the Act in full debate during which time a 'beer clause' will be offered as an amendment by a member other than a Cabinet Minister.

Five dollar permits for 'hard liquor' are to be reduced to $2 while to purchase beer by a resident will cost $1 annually. The non-resident clause is to be eliminated in order to satisfy our American cousins.

Provision is to be made in the act to allow the Liquor Control Board to be composed of one or five members. It is altogether likely that some changes are to be made in the personnel, rumor connecting the names of Archie Johnson and Col. Winby as being dropped and thus leave the whole say in the administration to J. H. Falconer, a close friend of the present government.

An amendment affecting the distribution of the profits, is likely, a certain fraction being designated for school purposes, while the remainder coming to the municipalities will be allocated to hospitals direct from the treasury department. Advertisements of liquor, which have been under a cloud since a Liberal coup held in Vancouver last summer when practically all the advertising was composed of liquor ads. is still to be permitted but these must contain the name of the concern in order to show that the government is not footing the bill.

Attorney-General Mason will also attempt to put the export houses in the interior out of business by raising the annual fee to $10,000. This will meet with opposition.

A very significant statement made recently by a prominent bank president in the United States reads as follows:

"When we see a man cutting down on his advertising, we cut down on his credit."

A word to the wise is sufficient.

THE "MODERATION" HUMBUG.

On another page will be found the record of liquor sales by the various government stores in the province. These sales include the total up to September 30th and their significant fall a tale that will forever put the quip on the humbug called "moderation." If this is moderation, the government body of voters who voted for government "control" and "moderation" have been given an explanation will undo what has been done by those whose duty it was to abide by the decision of the voter. There is no moderation about this record. It is whiskey rampant and vituperated by the government and its bootleggers without censure and with impunity.

This is the very "moderation" predicted by the Trail News, when the plebiscite was before the people, and this is a sample of the "control" which would be exercised. We are no bringers of ancient history in this case in an effort to prove we are always right, but we just recall the prediction because we said at the time that if the province of British Columbia could "control" liquor it would be doing something which had never before been done in all history of liquor traffic. We stated times with our number that the whiskey men were back of the so-called "moderation" act, and in the light of events we know now that we spoke the truth.

Up to September 30th Trail donated to the "moderation" act the tidsum of $106,939.54, and there are some who wonder why there are no better times in Trail.

Over one hundred thousand dollar spent for what?

That sum is greater than the total cost of our new water system. I would pay for the new technical high school building, the fine new E. F. building, and there would still remain enough money to pay for five new municipal than the present plan for the year.

While we do not have the exact figures at hand, we believe the amount donated to the whiskey store in Trail last year is double the total cost of the public school system in this city. Twice as much for booze as for education! That is not the worst feature of the case. This money was given without solicitation, while the effort to secure a new school building nearly created a local revolution.

We gag on a goat and swallow a camel. We howl about taxes and then give away one hundred thousand dollars for booze.

Then there is another side to this thing called "control." From figures obtained by those interested, it develops that the government is not selling much more than half the liquor sold in the province, as was proven conclusively in the case of Fernie and Michel. After the "expert" haul was removed from that locality sale in the government liquor stores it averaged 132 per cent in Fernie and 114 in Michel.

The whiskey men are now seeking to put through a bill making it legal to sell "beer and light wines" by the glass, which means the return of the saloon.

The old-time saloon was a disgrace to civilization, yet we prefer it to the present method of handling booze.

BOOTLEGGERS HANDLE HALF LIQUOR OUTPUT

The amount of illegal sale of bootlegging, going on in B. C., has been seriously estimated. On July 31st, 1932, the Vancouver World claimed that the government liquor stores were selling one-half the amount being sold in B. C. It has several times repeated this statement.

On August 2nd, 1932, a charge of selling liquor contrary to the Liquor Act was made against two bonded carousers in Fernie and their entire stock of liquor, valued at $200.00 was seized. On September 2nd, the Victoria Times claimed that the result was that the sales in the government liquor stores at Fernie are almost (close by) had increased from one hundred to two hundred per cent as a matter of fact the actual increase was at Fernie 136 per cent, at Michel 114 per cent. This would indicate that the World's estimate made was well within the limits—as much as being sold illegally as being sold in the government liquor stores.

NO EDITORS THERE

The Princeton Mirror, a newspaper, printed within the walls of a penitentiary in Minnesota, is being conducted under great difficulties. There is an editor on the roll of guests. Why is it, says an article in the Mirror, "that from the first inception of our paper, up to the present time, we have never had an editor to appear in our midst?" Other professions have been well represented. Teachers we have had enough to furnish aphorisms to a cannibal chef; years; of doctors, sufficient numbers to depopulate a state; lawyers enough to establish a crooked colony in B.—but of editors, none.—Pioneer.

A REGULAR BOY

He always is hungry and seldom is clean.
He wears out his clothes at a terrible rate,
and none of his lessons remain in his brain;
If his pockets are loaded with non-descript freight,
if his ways seem exclusively meant for annoy,
Why, then, you are raising a Regular Boy.

If he comes home with incarnadine nose,
An eye that is Mackenized and clothing a mess,
If there's tumult and shouting wherever he goes,
If he plagues little girls to their utter distress,
If when summoned to bathe he's exceedingly coy,
Why, then, you are raising a Regular Boy.

If he fidgets in church and he wriggles in school,
He tracks up the kitchen with mud from the street,
He doesn't take kindly to order and rule,
Getting in trouble seems chiefly his joy,
If he thinks it's a snuffed thing to be neat,
Why then you are raising a Regular Boy.

If he looks at the world as a place of romance,
Where many adventures are just down the road,
If his body is sturdy and clear in his glance,
If he's loving and loyal and true to his code,
If he's pure pep and grit without any alloy,
You're raising—God bless him—a Regular Boy.

This Canada of ours is coming to a poor state of affairs which legislators will have to deal with to punish the individual that will criticize administration. Take for instance the action taken against the editor of The Axe.

INDUSTRIAL CONDITIONS

At many of the industrial centers of central and eastern Canada activity prevails, particularly in the textile mills, in which there have been occasionally larger orders than the factories receiving them could fill. It is noteworthy also that a decided improvement is taking place in the demand for machinery, recent orders having been in some volume in some cases as to necessitate the employment of more than double the number of men required during the spring arm implement factories are also employing more hands than for some time, and increased activity is looked for after the turn of the year.

The production of pig iron in Canada during October amounted to 26,38 tons, as compared with 24,970 tons in the previous month, an increase of 47 per cent, over the quantity for September. The increase in output occurred almost wholly in the pig iron, the production of which increased from 16,975 tons in September to 20,922 tons in October, or 57.70 per cent. The output of steel ingots and castings amounted to 12,35 tons, an increase of 47 per cent, over the September figures of 8,37 tons. Activity in railway construction by increasing the demand for rails is, no doubt, one of the factors in increasing the output of the industry.

MINING

The production of gold and silver in Canada continues on an increased scale. Producing gold mines are being explored more vigorously and new properties are being tested and put into operation, not only in the Kootenai district in Ontario, but in British Columbia and the Yukon territory. In the last-named, recent developments indicate finds of silver sufficiently large to ensure the successful operation of the camps for some years. In practically all coal-mining districts activity is reported, but it is exceptionally great in those districts which serve the prairie provinces. At Drumheller shipments for October, 1932, were 5,211 cars, as compared with 2,623 cars in 1931. On the Pacific Coast the mines are operating to the limit of shipping facilities. Increased shipments have recently been made from the asbestos mines in eastern Canada, and the outlook for this product has improved.

EXTRAORDINARY CURE

A unique triumph of medical skill one which creates a record in the matter of a cure, was registered at the Medical College of the University of Alberta the past week, when an eight-year-old girl from Vulcan, was brought back to life from a state of diabetic coma, from which, so far as is known, there had not previously been a recovery. This remarkable cure was effected by the use of insulin in serum, manufactured by Dr. Collip, of the Medical Faculty of the University, and was the result of treatment by Dr. Collip and Dr. Heger Jamieson, of Edmonton. Dr. Collip, last year, took special research work in this connection at Toronto University with Drs. Banting, Best and Macleod. He returned this year and continued his work along this line at the Alberta University, with the result that he was able to effect the cure recorded. A similar cure was effected at New York last week with the same serum manufactured at Toronto University. The Toronto and Alberta Universities are the only two places in the world so far as is known where this serum is manufactured. The two cures effected have attracted the attention of medical science over the entire continent.

AVERAGE PRICE OF FOOD-STUFFS ADVANCE ONE-THIRD OF ONE PER CENT

The average wholesale prices of 35 leading food commodities during the month of November shows an increase as compared with the general average during October of .333 per cent, or about one-third of one per cent. The outstanding feature in the markets during the month of November was the steady increase in the price of flour, which showed an advance of from 10c to 20c every week during the month, the average price on Manitoba hard wheat flour being $7.05 a barrel as against the average of $6.75 for October. Cereals also inclined upward, particularly rolled oats and cornmeal, the average price of the former being 15c per bag and the latter 27½c per bag higher than the average in October. Eggs and butter were higher by 2c per lb., while cheese increased 4c per lb. The comparison of prices shows a few declines of a few cents per dozen on canned tomatoes, corn and peaches, while a shade reduction is noted in shelled almonds, walnuts and rice.

Aren't we human beings funny? We spend money for gasoline, we take in picture shows, eat ice cream, drink soft drinks, smoke, smoke, and indulge in hundreds of things that bring us nothing out of the entertainment of the moment. But no permanent benefit comes to us from any of it, but we never think of kicking about it.

It is only when we come to pay our taxes, the thing that gives us schools, roads, public libraries, government and general benefit that we sit up on our beds and holler our heads off. Aren't we human beings funny?

Most people underestimate the value of a woodlot. A New York man who made a planting of white pine has been offered $5000 an acre for the timber on the stump. Under favorable conditions an acre of white pine will average a growth of one thousand feet a year, which is not bad when it is remembered the tree will grow on otherwise rather unprofitable land.

THE NATURAL RESOURCES

The Alberta Cabinet has endorsed the attitude of Premier Greenfield and Attorney-General Brodie in refusing the offer made by the Dominion government at the recent conference at Ottawa on the natural resources.

This offer was the natural resources be returned, with a continuance of the yearly cash subsidy for three years. The Alberta government adheres to its proposal that the cash subsidy be discontinued on the return of the resources to the province but that the Dominion compensate Alberta for resources alienated for federal purposes. Though the most recent Dominion offer has been declined, the way is still open for further negotiation.

Premier Greenfield's statement in the matter is as follows:

Negotiations for the turning over by the Dominion government to the province of Alberta of the natural resources still unalienated were resumed at Ottawa recently, on the invitation of the prime minister, Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, following upon a request by the government of this province that negotiations be reopened.

The position at the opening of negotiations last April was that the provincial government had received a communication from the Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, making two suggestions to the governments of the prairie provinces, as a basis of discussion and possible settlement: (1) The return of the unalienated resources by the Dominion to the province without compensation for resources already alienated. Present subsidy received from Dominion in lieu of lands to be discontinued. (2) An accounting between Dominion and provinces from the beginning by an independent tribunal, crediting the provinces with all monies received, charging provinces with all outlay by the Dominion, directly or indirectly, in relation to the management of the resources. Findings of the tribunal to be final. Present subsidy in lieu of lands to be discontinued.

These suggestions were fully discussed at the conference in Ottawa in April last, neither proposal being considered a satisfactory basis of settlement by the representatives of the provinces.

Growth Of Fox Farming

Price of Black Foxes Has Taken a Great Jump

The steady growth of the fox farming industry in Canada is responsible for the decrease in the value of a pair of foxes, and re-mated animals are now being sold for $400 a pair, although peak prices ran as high as $3,500, for a pair of exceptionally fine animals.

The average price for pelts, last season, was $275 each, while the variation of price was from $100 to $800 a skin.

Fox farming is the direct outgrowth of the early attempts of Canadian trappers to hold over foxes, captured out of season, until the animal became full-furred. Experiments conducted in the provinces of Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, Quebec and Ontario, by J. A. Allen, B.V.Sc., animal pathologist, Fox Research Station, Charlottetown, P.E.I., resulted in fixing the type of the valuable black or silver fox, which is a sort of the common red fox. The new industry of fox farming followed as a natural sequence.

Although a few foxes have been kept in confinement in Canada for a greater number of years, the expansion of the fox industry did not really begin until 1910. Before this time fox raising was a secret pursuit, in which only a few were allowed to participate. The knowledge that the men already engaged in the enterprise were making handsome profits from the sale of the pelts of foxes which they were raising, gradually leaked out, and it became possible to see possession of foundation stock became a veritable craze.

So great was the demand for foundation stock that the practice of selling ceased about 1911, and all available foxes were sold alive. The cost of a pair of foxes steadily rose from $3,000 a pair in 1910, to $20,000 a pair in 1913. During the hey-day of the boom, as high as $35,000 was paid for exceptional specimens. When the supply of foxes for foundation stock became exhausted, foxes were captured and brought from other parts of the country to help to supply the demand; and optimistic investors began speculating in futures, and options were taken on unborn pups.

The European War brought an end to speculative fox-raiding, and a highly speculative venture was changed into a legitimate industry. So far as the fox industry on this continent is concerned, the day of speculation is apparently over, and live foxes are sold for what their pelts would bring or a little more, because breeders recognize that every pair of foxes sold means a competitor. The present value of a pair of live foxes at present (1923) is from $500 and upwards, according to quality and performance.

It is estimated that over 600 pairs of live foxes were exported from the province of Prince Edward Island, during 1921. At the last pelting season the crop of pelts was placed at 6,000, and the price obtained for skins varied from $100 to $650, the average price quoted by the dealers being $375.

The Era of Dried Vegetables

Tin Cans May Soon Be a Thing of the Past

It has been said that if processes for "dehydrating" vegetables and fruits can be made entirely successful, we shall "live out of cartons instead of out of the cans," says the Philadelphia Public Ledger. One of the most puzzling problems to this line has been offered by sweet corn, but it has at last to have been solved, and already that delectable food has appeared on the market in paper packages. It comes to the housewife only half as much as she pays for canned corn, and the flavor is much more like that of corn on the cob.

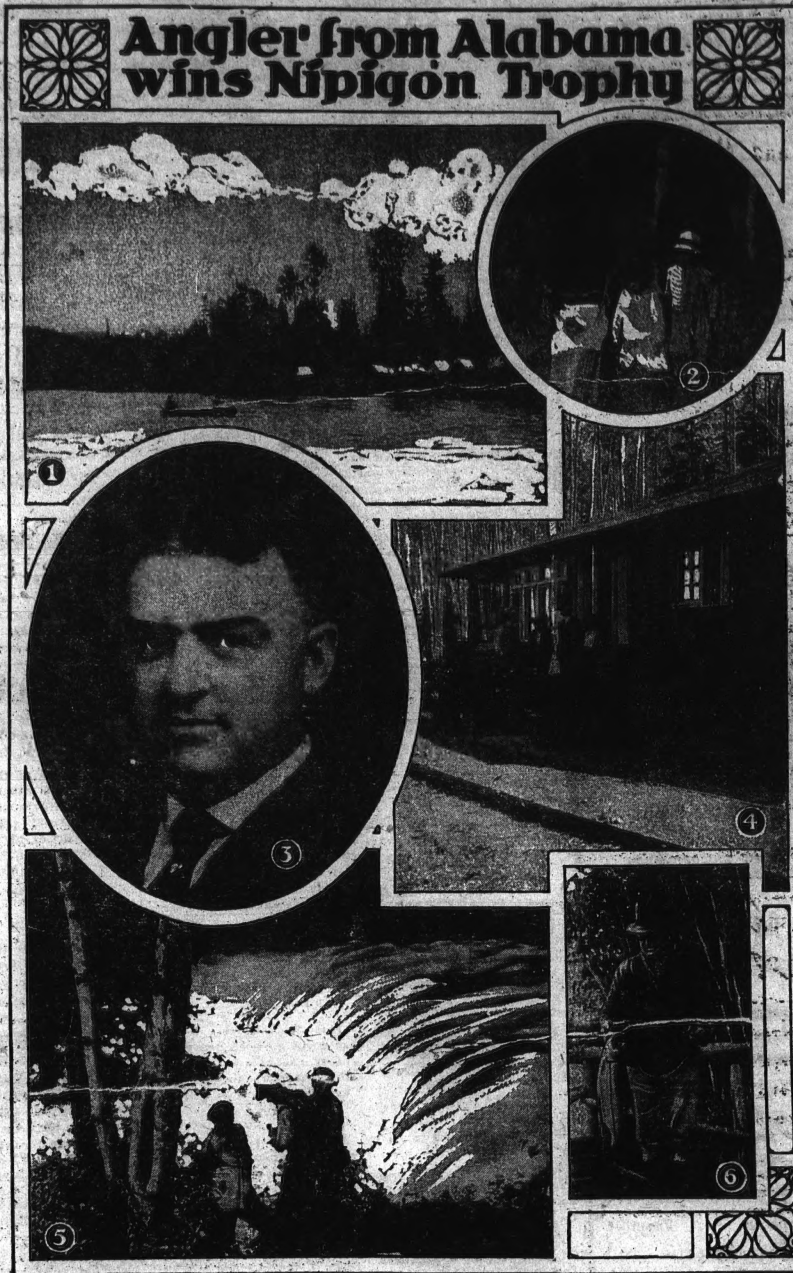

Leaving refrigeration aside, we have two methods of preserving food—sterilization and dehydration. The former is represented by canning. The latter is as old as civilization; for housewives for thousands of years have dried some kinds of food to serve them. How ancient and familiar is the dried apple!

In 1920 there were put up in the United States 12,217,609 cases of peas, 11,248,000 cases of tomatoes and 12,940,000 cases of corn—each case containing 24 cans.

With some vegetables and fruits success has not yet been attained, but the problem seems to have been satisfactorily solved with regard to grapes and most other fruits as well as stringless beans, spinach, pumpkins and root vegetables.

Five bushels of green sweet corn will yield one bushel of the dried product. One pound of the latter will make an equivalent of three cans of fancy canned corn. "Refreshed" by soaking in water as preliminary to cooking, a pound of dehydrated corn will weigh nearly three pounds.

3. Mr. C. E. Abbott, of Bessemer, Alabama, Winner of Nipigon Trophy.

4. A Pleased Party at Nipigon Lodge.

5. Mr. Abbott With His Prize-Winning Speckled Trout.

6. Mr. Abbott With His Prize-Winning Speckled Trout.

WHEN Mr. C. E. Abbott, of Bessemer, Alabama, invited Mrs. Abbott and their two sons to a fishing spree on the Nipigon River, he expected he was taking them to some fine fishing and restful recreation. He would be sure of that at the Nipigon, at any event. But the party did run into some extra good fishing, with the result that Mr. Abbott has been announced as the winner in the Nipigon Trophy Competition for 1922. The prize-winning catch was a speckled trout, weighing seven pounds, nine ounces, measuring twenty-seven inches in length, and fifteen inches in girth. The Alabama fisherman caught his prize on a single hook, with a corksucker bait.

The Nipigon Trophy was donated by Canadian National Railways, not so much to popularize Nipigon fishing—for that has been internationally famous for years—but to give an element of real competition into the fishing, by the many visitors, to the waters each year. It will be recalled that when the Prince of Wales was in Canada, he spent considerable time fishing up along the Nipigon, and that he was made comfortable at the Railway Lodge, at Orient Bay, now considered the chief outfitting and starting point for fishermen in the Nipigon waters.

This year the contest was a part of the Hotel Department of the National Railways, and Neil McDougall is not only a sportsman of rare knowledge, but a host who is rapidly becoming famous.

The Abbott party left Nipigon Lodge during the morning of August 15, landing two hours later at Virgin Falls. There "Jim" Ward, fish ranger, extended a greeting and at the same time requested the party's fishing license. With the southern hospitality, "Jim" invited the party to share his cabin while the Indian guides prepared camp on the opposite shore. But the Nipigon guides are rapid workers, and Mr. Abbott observes that "it is incredibly short time, 'Nick' John," our head guide, was back to take us across to our new home in the wilderness. The dining table was up, the cook tent and stove were in working order, and a feast that was fit for a king ready for our hungry travelers. By sundown all was completed; all tents up, everything unpacked, and a big fire ready to light at our tent. The beds were of balsam boughs—and what a haven of rest one finds on a bed of fresh cut northern balsam.

The next day, the party tried for trout-fishing. Trout fishing, above Virgin Falls. No luck. The next trail was for pike, in a pool below the falls, and several were landed. The following day, bright and early, the party tried the falls again, and a four and a half pound speckled trout was landed after a game fight. It was at the stern of the canoe, and "Tommy" was in the bow. Mr. Abbott was accompanied by C. E. Abbott, junior. It was about 5:30 in the evening.

"We" had made several trips across the stream," said Mr. Abbott, "keeping from about one hundred and fifty to two hundred feet above the brink of the falls, letting our lines down into the swift water, just at the brink."

"Suddenly my line and a half ounce red bent like a bow, and I quickly struck. C. E. Junior, was in front of me in the canoe, and my line had crossed his. However, he reeled in quickly, and 'Nick' cleared the lines.

"Then the fight was on. I have never felt anything on my line as heavy as that trout, nor had I ever realized how helpless one feels with light tackle and a heavy fish hooked. I was using a small Colorado spinner with a number ten single hook, and corksucker bait. The guide headed the canoe immediately up into water deeper and gulder. I succeeded in getting the fish into the same position. Stripping in line with my left hand, and taking up slack with my automatic reel, I soon had him within fifty feet, when he broke water and rolled.

"The big one. You going to lose him," said 'Nick.' "The Indian was fearful because of the small hook I was using. How and out went the trout with severity to one hundred feet of line. Again I was able to bring him towards the canoe; but four times he took part so much line I despaired of ever landing him. Once I got him up near the canoe, but he was too deep, and I could do nothing, while the rod tip was in the water and the rod itself bent almost double. With another run, he weakened gradually, and I again worked him towards the canoe. He rolled to the surface, and 'Nick' with one sweep of the landing net, gathered him in. The fight had lasted twenty-five minutes.

"You could have heard the yell of that Indian for a full mile."

Mr. Abbott, pere, had accomplished his objective. There was more fishing, but the big one had been landed, so the party spent the remaining days on the river in a trip down to Pine Portage, running the rapids as they went. Some good catches were reeled in. Mrs. Abbott capturing a one and a half pound trout, unaided.

Today, Mr. Abbott's prize suitably mounted by Neil McDougall hangs above the desk, a constant reminder, he says, of "wonderful days spent on the Nipigon."

Harmony Of Building

Plans Brought to Completion Only When People Work Together

To build is not simply to put one stone upon another. To build is to put one stone on another and alongside of a third, and so on, but all in harmony with, and subordinate to, a controlling plan, and a remote completed purpose. The very well be, that some humble builder has not with his own eyes seen the very plan. It may be that the poor man could not understand such a complicated affair, even if it were put into his hands. But the humblest builder knows that there is a plan somewhere, that somebody has thought out the whole thing, and that unless the world has gone crazy, he is not being asked to move blocks of stone or brick or wood for the sake of giving them a little change of air; that, on the contrary, the little thing which he is being asked to do is related to the little thing which the fellow-laborer is doing and that to other laborers in ever-widening circles, until something which shall unite and consummate all those individual tasks shall have been completed in the world.

An Offered Friendship

By Christopher G. Hazard

People have a good deal of acquaintance, but not much friendship. They meet with pleasant greetings, but with reservations. They have heard things about others and have disapproved of observed actions. There are envyings and jealousies. There are old grievances and remembered slights. So our common relations are like thin ice; there is a glittering surface, but it won't bear a man's weight; we cannot safely risk the burden of our trouble and need upon it. So it is surprising how solitary people are in the midst of society. How much men keep themselves to themselves! How few have true friends! How rarely does that genial exchange, that deep fellowship, that frank confidence, that free use of each other which we call friendship exist! We are so absorbed in self, so occupied with selfish interests, so enmeshed in our crust and shell of reserve that we know much too little of the superior strength and sweet joy of friendship. God never thinks it good for us to be alone. We were all made for each other. Amid all the infinite variety of personal make-up and disposition there must be a supply of friendship for everyone. It is one of the necessities of life. Everyone longs for it. Even God is lonely among men who do not recognize Him. We are somehow cheated of one of the great human resources as we are not enriched by noble friendships. Why should it be so?

Perhaps one of the reasons for our lack of friends is that we do not feel worthy of them. We would like to receive the blessings of friendship but doubt our capacity to return enough of worth to make the investment in us a paying one to others. What have we to return for the riches and graces of character, service and companionship? How could we, with our high ideals of what we expect from a friend, ever repay his equally great desires? They must be some equality between two friends. Are we capable of being a friend? This is a main reason why many of a sort of hopelessness about friendship; they don't see why anyone should be interested in them and they despair of being worthy of a friend.

Here is one of the great attractions of that best of friends, Jesus Christ. His highest title is that of "A friend of publicans and sinners." He knocks upon the door of every heart with an offer to come in and share with it and let it share with Him. He will sit down at our table and bring all the worth of His wisdom, all the heat of His power, all the sweetness of His goodness, all the beauty of His character and personality into the house of our life. With such a guest for a friend one need never fear and may always hope. Jesus gives us the best of both worlds. Since He can forgive sins He will not refuse us anything. He can take us as we are and make us worthy to walk with Him in white. He is our power to be worthy to be called the children of God. And all this He does for us that never makes our faults and failings, our sins and sorrows, unkindly; that never condemns us, but always helps us. Truly, "There is a friend that sticketh closer than a brother." Anyone who is willing to follow Jesus will have His friendship. No one can be too poor to have a friend. What can a man do for all God's goodness to him? Let him take the cup of salvation and stand upon the name of the Lord. Let him take what God is offering him and call for more. The only way to give anything to God is to take more from Him!

How Bananas Grow

For good reason, before I went to Florida I had thought of the banana as growing upon a tree, but it grows upon a kind of huge corn-stalk a stalk the size of one's leg and 15 or 20 feet high—one bunch of fruit from each stalk or plant. When the bunch is matured the old stalks cut away, and a new shoot from the root takes its place. The bunch of bananas sprouts directly out of the heart of the plant—Burrows' Nature Note.

Greenland's Ice Fields

Greenland is a land of ice. Ice has been accumulating in the interior of Greenland since the dawn of history. Let him take what God is offering him and call for more. The only way to give anything to God is to take more from Him!

BLAIRMORE WINS FIRST
HOCKEY GAME OF SEASON

The Blairmore hockey team had on their best at the arena on Tuesday night last when the rink was officially opened for the season, and beat Doc. Barbour's tribe from Bellevue by a score of two goals to nothing.

The arena was packed and the fans were treated with a brand of hockey which would be hard to beat in the west. Both teams had been training hard for some time past, but the locals seemed to have the edge, and displayed better form than Bellevue.

However, they did not have it all their own way, for the visitors played air-tight and neither side managed to locate the net in the initial period. Play was pretty even with both Enns and "Tiny" Thompson being called upon quite often to save their teams.

The second period was as fast as the first and LeVasseur managed to beat Thompson when he took the pass from Roddick and bulged the net. Bellevue were trying hard to score all through this period, but when the going rang they were still trying and the score stood Blairmore 1, Bellevue 0.

In the last period the locals seemed to have the best of it again and showed up to advantage. Pruden notched Blairmore's other goal when Thompson was about fifteen feet from the nets after the puck. Godard passed to Pruden for this one and all Pruden had to do was ease it in as the goal mouth was unguarded.

Walter Scott handled the bell to the satisfaction of both teams, and only had to hand a few penalties, Dutch Gainer and Billie Turner, being the chief offenders.

Rev. Father Cosman and Rev. W. T. SOLVED PROBLEM OF

FILLING THE KIRK

(Kado Kootenai, April, 1918)
As a general rule people really never realize just what a force advertising is. I have seen a me this week a concrete illustration of it.

Last Monday the pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church came to me and asked me for my help. He said that he wanted to get his church filled on Sunday night, just once—to see what it looked like. He wanted my advice on how to do the trick. He had a big patriotic service in contemplation, he said.

Well, you know, I set my mind to work and in about fifteen seconds said:

I tell you what I'll do, Mr. Campbell, but you must not expect me to do it again. I'll give you ten dollars' worth of advertising space in the Kootenai, and pay for it myself. You fix me up copy for an ad for your patriotic service and let me have it not later than Tuesday morning, and I'll guarantee to fill St. Andrew's so that you will have to stick out the S.R.O. sign.

He laughed, because he thought I was just joking, or running a bluff. I think; but had his copy in on Tuesday morning. I gave the ad about

PRESIDENTS ARE WINNERS

The opening games of the season on the local curling rink were held last week, when the series between Presidents and Vice-Presidents was played with the result as shown below:

Presidents—Mackenzie 7, Bird 7, McKay 8, O'Neill 4, Wilson 10, McLeod 16, Whitelaw 5, Upton 8—Total 68.

Vice-Presidents—Morgan 7, Ferguson 5, Scott 8, Farmer 5, Olivier 12, McDougall 4, Clark 10, Key 7—Total 63.

Following the usual custom, the vice-presidents were obliged to entertain their opponents to an oyster supper, which was served at the Greenhill Grill on Monday evening at 10.30.

TAG DAY FOR JUNIOR HOCKEY

Saturday next will be observed by the Junior Hockey Club as Tag Day and the boys and girls, will be busy all day selling tags.

There are fifteen boys' teams and they need a little money to start out with. We understand that is sufficient money is realized through the sale of tags that no admission fee will be charged those who desire to witness the boys at the games.

There are a good number of good skaters among the boys, who give promise of becoming good hockey players, and no doubt will comprise our senior teams in the course of another few years.

The first game of the season will be played on Monday next, from 7 to 8 p.m., on the local arena.

COLEMAN HAS ORGANIZED
LADIES' HOCKEY CLUB

At a largely attended meeting of ladies, held at Coleman on Friday evening last, it was unanimously decided to organize a hockey club, and considerable good material for a team ten dollars' worth of display space, charged it to my personal account and let her go gallagher.

Well, last Sunday night St. Andrew's church was packed to the doors, and they had to rattle some benches to accommodate the crowd. All denominations besides Presbyterians were represented, and I have no doubt that the service was enjoyed and appreciated by all, and in a number of cases could prove beneficial to case hardened sinners, who have never been out to a church for years. For myself, I am a hard one to get to church because I realize that I am past all hope of redemption; but in the present instance I revelled in my ability to show what I could do in the way of swinging a crowd.

Somehow I feel certain that in the Book of Life my record will be credited with that ten bones—a credit against many debts of a credit against sin-blacked life. It is some consolation to me to feel that I shall be thus credited because I am equally certain that I shall receive no credit (except from Pastor Campbell) from the tight-fisted Scotch that comprise the bulk of the congregation of St. Andrew's.

is in line.

Following are the officers of the new organization:

Honorary President—Mrs. O. E. S. Whiteside.

President—Mrs. A. Cornett.

Vice-President—Mrs. H. C. McBurney.

Treasurer—Miss L. Johnston.

Executive—Messrs. Rippon, Powell and Emmerson.

The colors will be red and white.

A tag-day will be put on for the purpose of raising funds for a starter.

SPORT NOTES

The Toronto St. Pats hit a snag in Calgary last Friday when the Tigers beat them 7 to 5. They again had to back water at Edmonton by a score of 11-7, and only managed to hold Saskatoon to a tie. At Winnipeg on Tuesday night the Calgary Tigers took their measure again to the tune of 6 to 2.

Edmonton Eskimos won the first game in the Western Canada League, when they defeated the Regina Caps by a score of 4-3.

Coleman hockey team has adopted the name of "Crystals."

Lethbridge Vets will play the Coleman Crystals tomorrow night on the occasion of the opening of the new Coleman arena.

The Lethbridge Herald has remarked several times that Blairmore has a good team on paper. They should have seen that same team hand Doc Barbour's pets a goose-egg on the ice last Tuesday.

If "Tiny" Thompson, Bellevue goal tender, had tended to his business on Tuesday night the chances are that Blairmore would only have scored one goal.

He was over in the corner trying to find the puck when Pruden just eased it in between the posts to get rid of it. And did you notice that both goals the other night were the result of combination. The old saying that "two heads are better than one" also applies to hockey.

Some one should put "Mutt" wise or first thing we know Blairmore will find him in bigger stuff. He played like a real veteran Tuesday night, and was stopping 'em all.

LeVasseur won a box of cigars for scoring Blairmore's first goal of the season. Hank says smoking is bad while training so will keep the cigars in cold storage till next summer.

A lady in the waiting room after Tuesday's game was heard to remark to her companion: "Why was Billie Turner like a baby tonight?" Her companion thought a moment and replied: "Oh, because he was in his bare skin!"

Canada's Fuel Resources Are Almost Unlimited Says Mining Engineer

Ottawa.—When the sum total of heat energy represented in Canada's resources of solid fuels—coals of all kinds, peat and wood, natural gas, crude oil and water powers—is considered, it will be seen that the country possesses sufficient energy for heat and power to answer her requirements at the present rate of use for a period considerably over 50,000 years.

This statement was made by H. F. Haanel, B.Sc., M.E.I.C., engineer of the mines branch, at a meeting of the Engineering Institute of Canada to discuss the fuel situation in Canada.

Mr. Haanel pointed out that the fuel resources of Canada comprise the coals of British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan; in the west; the coal deposits of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick; in the east; the large areas overlain by peat in all parts of the Dominion, the oil and natural gas fields of Ontario, New Brunswick and Alberta, and the standing forests. If, he said, by fuel resources is meant all sources of heat and energy, then he would add the enormous potential energy represented in the developed and undeveloped water powers distributed throughout the country. In fact, the coal resources alone, he said, would last at the present rate of use for 20,000 years.

Freight rates, Mr. Haanel said, were the reason the surplus from the west could not be sent to Ontario and Quebec, where it was needed. The freight rates were due, not only to the 2,000 mile haul, but to the impossibility of balancing freights. Coal cars destined from the west would have to return empty. Even if the freight rates were cut in half, it would be a question whether the western dealers could seriously compete with the American colliers. The speaker noted that Manitoba was rapidly becoming independent of American coals through the increasing use of Alberta coals both for industrial and domestic purposes. "The same would apply to Saskatchewan."

In our new serial, "Hidden Gold," the author, Wilder Anthony, has given us a story of compelling interest. Do not fail to read the first chapter which appears in this issue.

CANADA SHOULD GO OUT AFTER TOURISTS

REVENUE LAST SEASON FROM U.S. WAS ABOUT 12,000,000.

Toronto.—With proper care the tourist traffic can be developed to a stage where it will be the largest profitable industry in Ontario and is the one thing the province can well afford to cater to, declared Hon. F. C. Higgins, Ontario Minister of Public Works and Highways, before the Electric Club here.

Mr. Higgins pointed out that the revenue from United States tourists alone had during the past season amounted to about $12,000,000.

Wind Ditches Train in France
Perrigand, France.—A train was blown off the track near the Friton station by a mistral of great violence. A sudden gust of wind swept under the last car but one, lifting it clear of the rails. Two others toppled into a ravine. No one was hurt.

Irish Free State Now One Of Dominions Of The British Empire

Dublin.—The inauguration of the Irish Free State as one of the Dominions of the British Empire took place unmarred by hostile demonstrations from the Republican minority.

The oath was administered to Timothy Healy as Governor-General by the Lord Chief Justice. The new Governor-General administered the oath to Prof. Michael Hayes as Speaker of the Dail.

William B. Cosgrave was the first to be sworn in. The form of the oath of allegiance was primarily to the constitution of the Irish Free State.

Predicts a Dry World

Sir Geo. Foster Has No Doubt That Prohibition Will Win

Ottawa.—"I am glad it has come to a world fight. There is no greater enemy than the drink traffic, but I have not the slightest doubt as to the ultimate victory," said Sir George Foster at the close of a speech of welcome to seven visiting delegates to the international congress recently held in Toronto of the World League Against Alcohol.

Sir George affirmed that if stern necessity for efficiency had driven the country to prohibition during the war, it was equally, or more, necessary, in the efficiency demanded during the peace.

He declared that while the world delegates had come to Canada to see and to learn things, they had given the people of Canada an impetus, too.

HER HEART SKIPPED EVERY THIRD BEAT

Mrs. James Burleigh, 248 King St. E., Chatham, Ont., writes: "I think it my duty to let you know what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me."

I suffered for years with palpitation of the heart, my nerves were very bad and I could not be left alone at any time. I doctored for over a year, and the doctor said my heart was very bad as it skipped every third beat. I gave up, just at this time, and then my mother advised me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, saying my eldest brother had been relieved by using them when he was very bad with his heart and nerves. I got a box and started to take them, and when I had used it I felt a lot better. I could sleep a little and felt stronger. I continued taking them for about three months, and felt better than I had for years.

When I think of the misery and suffering I went through before I used Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, I feel like telling everyone how what they did for me."

Canadian Nationality
Saskatoon.—The Canadian census taking system is hard on Canadians, declared Col. G. A. Hodgkins, Director-General of the St. John Ambulance Association. "It is not right that the Canadian-born citizen has to study his genealogy to find out what nationality he is."

In the United States they are all Americans who are born there. In the same way we who are born in this country are Canadians."

Will Complain to Crown

The question of education figures largely in the list of complaints.

PRIZE WINNER FOR PRINCE OF WALES

GRAND CHAMPION SHROPSHIRE RAM GOES TO ALBERTA RANCH

Chicago.—Regal quarters await the grand champion Shropshire ram of the 23rd annual international livestock exhibit.

Following the purchase of the newly-crowned monarch, W. M. Carlyle, of Calgary, announced that the ram was to be shipped immediately following the close of the show, to the ranch owned by the Prince of Wales, situated 63 miles south of Calgary, he acting as special representative to the heirs to the British throne. Mr. Carlyle paid $500 for the ram, which weighs 250 pounds.

In buying the champion, the Prince, he declared, was pursuing the policy he had adopted since buying the ranch, namely, to stock it with the best cattle, horses, sheep and swine obtainable.

London Will Exhibit Canadian Foodstuffs

Idea is to Popularize Products in Great Britain

London.—An exhibition of foodstuffs prepared by Canadian manufacturers will be a feature of the British Industries fair which will be held concurrently in London and Birmingham early next year, says the monthly circular of the American Chamber of Commerce in London. The exhibits, which will include canned goods, breakfast foods and dairy products, will be prepared with a view to popularizing Canadian foodstuffs in Great Britain. The circular stated that the Lancaster cotton industry is again depressed. Only 21 of the 63 spinning mills paid dividends in November.

China Regains Territory

Shantung Controversy Has Been Settled By Washington Treaty

Peking.—China and Japan have completed settlement of the Shantung controversy as outlined by the terms of the Washington treaty.

China agrees to pay Japan 40,000,000 yen for the Shantung railroad. In addition China pays Japan 16,000,000 yen for all public properties located in the Kiao Chow district.

Civil and military administration were turned over to China on Dec. 10, while the Shantung railways will be transferred to Chinese authority January 1. China as a direct result of the Washington conference thus regains control of territory which it lost when it was seized by Germany in 1918.

Canada Receives Gift From France
Hamilton, Ont.—Hon. S. C. McBurn, Chairman of the Canadian Battlefields Memorial Commission, was officially advised by Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux that the French Government had given to Canada 250 acres of Vimy Ridge as a park. The mammoth memorial planned by the commission will be located in the park.

Canadian Officials Will Send Convention to Washington for Approval

Ottawa.—The first international postal conference between Canada and the United States closed with expressions of mutual goodwill. Canadian postal officials will now prepare a new convention between the two countries to supersede the convention of 1888 and forward it to Washington for approval.

The convention will embody the decisions of the conference and, according to present understanding, will come into effect on January 1 next.

Cattle Embargo Measure Being Hurried Along At Canada's Request

London.—By a vote of 379 to 27, the House of Commons rejected a motion for the rejection of the Importation of Animals Bill. Premier Bonar Law stated that the report stage and the third reading would be taken up this week.

The main criticism in connection with the bill was that the Government was acting rather hurriedly, and that more time was needed to make effective arrangements to ensure a steady supply of stores.

Sir Robert Sanders, Minister of Agriculture, restrained criticism by stating that the Government, in assisting the bill forward, was complying with the wish of the Canadian Government.

The only point now at issue is the question of the application of the regulation, under the bill, to Irish cattle.

Ulster members complain that while the embargo is being removed from Canadian store cattle, a new embargo is being placed on Irish cattle.

General Brown, while agreeing that the bill fulfilled the promise made to Canada, said there also had been made a promise to safeguard the health of stock in Great Britain.

T. P. O'Connor (Liverpool), declared that Irish opinion was against the bill. Irishmen contended that the bill ought to be in harmony with the letter and spirit of the Irish treaty and that there should be free trade between the two countries.

Withdrawal Of Prepay Arrangement

U.S. Railways Will Send Fuel to Canada "Collect"

New York.—The coal and coke association announced that arrangement had been completed to accept all rail coal and coke shipments from United States points to Canadian destinations with charges to collect.

This follows announcement of the Canadian railways that they had withdrawn their requirements that freight charges to the border on coal and coke shipments to Canada must be paid.

The withdrawal order was effective Dec. 10. The prepay requirement was put into effect at the time the Canadian rate of exchange was considerably below par.

Supremacy In Grain Established By Canada At International Show

Chicago.—Canada definitely established its supremacy in grain at the International Livestock Exposition when announcements from the hay and grain show showed that the Dominion had captured the two most important sweepstakes and a host of first prizes and places in other divisions in that department.

The sweepstakes in wheat, probably the class containing the largest entry in the show, was won by R. O. Wyler, of Lusseland, Sask., with a sample of hard red spring wheat.

The sweepstakes in oats, another large class, was won by J. W. Biglands, of Lacombe, Alta. First prize in rye, which amounts to the same thing as sweepstakes, was won by J. W. Lucas, of Cayley, Alta.

First prize in two-rowed barley was won by Nick Tullinger, of Crowsnest, Alta. H. G. L. Strange, of Fenn, Alta., took fifth, and Jack Davidson, of Buffalo Horn, Sask., eighth. A host of other Canadians won prizes and premiums in smaller divisions.

Canada took many more of the events left in the hay and grain show. Most of the winners were from one town, Brooks, Alberta, which supplied Pat Garrahan, Alex. Garrahan and MacNaughton and Gratton to win places in the alfalfa seed contest. P. K. Patton to take a premium in the six-row barley, and a number of other men to place in the divisions and in Alsike clover seed and Timothy seed.

In the horse show, Albert Lawson, of Darlington, Manitoba, won honors for Canada in the first event, when his horses took both second and third places for non-professional draft horses, geldings or mares, weighing over 2,200 pounds.

Medallists Best won the championship among fat classes of gateway steers. He was chased by the University of Alberta.

"Nearly Lost Baby With Croup"

Has Depended on Dr. Chase's Medicines for 25 Years

This letter from Mrs. Thompson gives you some idea of why so many thousands of people depend on Dr. Chase in the hour of sickness.

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has a permanent place in the great majority of Canadian homes because it is the most certain relief from Croup, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough and Asthma.

Mrs. Alex. Thompson, Whith, Alta., writes:—"When my first baby was born, I think she would have died from croup before we could reach a doctor, if it had not been for a neighbor who had a bottle of Dr. Chase's Linseed and Turpentine in the house. This relieved her almost immediately. That was 21 years ago, and Dr. Chase's Medicines have been friends of ours ever since."

Asthma
Mr. Thomas Bond, Sheldrake, North Shore, Que., writes:—"I suffered for years with asthma, sometimes being unable to lie in bed but after a treatment of Dr. Chase's Linseed and Turpentine, I am now quite well and thank this medicine for restoring me."

Interest in the game, if it is the right game is what makes the world go round. Hillcrest Happenings

(By our own dear Felix)

Jack Eccleston is back again in town, after a visit to Edmonton and other northern points.

The mine was idle Tuesday, owing to the election of officers for District 18 of the U. M. W. of A.

Nomination of officers for Turtle Mountain Lodge, K. of P., took place at the schoolhouse on December the 5th.

The new mine doctor, Dr. Rose, late of Taber, is duly installed and seems to be kept busy one way or another.

Bobby Smith is recovering very nicely from his broken limb, but it will be some time before he is able to take his place with the hockey team.

It is rumored that we are going to have another grocery store, which will be opened shortly in the McLean building by Mr. Joseph Brehler, of Blairmore, formerly of Hillcrest.

The dance held at the Union hall on Friday night, under the auspices of the Local Union, was not very well attended, owing, no doubt, to the bad weather and the hockey dance at Bellevue.

The C. G. T. girls held their annual conclave in the church on Wednesday night last. The attendance was by invitation. A very enjoyable evening was spent. After the eats, the different toasts and games, a presentation was made by the girls to Dr. and Mrs. McDonald, who are leaving town shortly to reside in Calgary.

Bills are out announcing a grand masquerade dance to be held at the Union hall on the night of January, the 1st. This dance is being given under the auspices of the new Knights of Pythias Lodge. Splendid prizes are offered and a good crowd is expected. The floor in the Union hall is admitted to be the best in The Pass for dancing.

CHRISTMAS NUMBER, 1922

The Spirit of Christmas

THE Spirit of Christmas glided softly into the City of Everyday at dusk on Christmas Eve. There was a light, happy stirring of bundle-laden people along the brightly lighted streets, and the sound of children's voices made music on the frosty pine-scented air.

A wonderful Christmas was in prospect, for there had been a fine goodwill crop. And when the goodwill crop is a success a splendid Christmas is assured, you know.

The Spirit of Christmas passed up one street and down another looking for a home into which no goodwill blossoms had been gathered, for there, she knew, she would be needed.

At last she stopped at one of the humblest homes in the poorest street in the whole city, and entered. Surely she would be needed to work some magic in such a home! It was so small it seemed as if there would hardly be room to garner even a crop of goodwill—and goodwill, as you know, takes up very little room, though the aroma of it spreads a long, long way.

A man and woman and several little children were grouped around a rickety table, upon which stood a basket and many homely parcels.

"We must share what we have with our neighbor who is poorer even than we are, and who, besides, is a stranger in a strange land," said the man, as he began to fill the basket. The woman went to a drawer and took out some little white woolly garments with the smell of lavender clinging to them. She held them lovingly in her rough hands for a moment and a mist sprang into her eyes as across

Under the spell of the Spirit of Christmas a new look came into the man's face—a flicker of that youth which never really dies till it goes out with the last breath.

He lifted the rose to his lips and closed his eyes to dream a moment of the scented summer days and the wonderful moon—white nights, the tender young eyes, and the whispered vows which his perfume called up. When he passed the rose across the table to the woman the dream went with it and spread itself swiftly before her inner vision. When she looked up again she left a tear in the heart of the rose, but there was a smile on her lips.

"You gave me checks—and checks—and checks—and what I really wanted from you was a rose—a rose and a dream," cried the woman, happily, as the man took her hands in his.

"I'm glad I called at this home," said the Spirit of Christmas, as she slipped out. "One never can tell where the Spirit of Christmas will be needed."

"UNDER THE MISTLETOE."

When you help mother decorate the house on Christmas Eve with holly-leaves and boughs, and hang up a bunch of mistletoe under the chandelier, have you ever wondered where it came from before the greengrocer sold it to people to hang up in their houses at Christmas?

Country chicks know, of course, but I don't suppose there are many town chicks who do. Well, the mistletoe grows in big bunches on trees.

It is sometimes found on oak-trees, too, but not very often.

THE FAIREST FLOWER THAT GROWS

her memory flashed the echo of a baby's lip. Then she put the garments into the basket with a smile. One child dropped in a torn picture-book, another a new top, and another something else until all had contributed to the basket.

"No work remains for me to do here," said the Spirit of Christmas, as she slipped out into the street again. "This family has more than enough goodwill in stock to see them through. They must have taken great care of the roots all through the year, instead of forgetting about them until Christmas time drew near as so many people do. I shall try a different kind of a home next. One never knows where the Spirit of Christmas may be needed."

On the very next street she found a home where she thought she might be needed. It was a beautiful home, with great rooms aglitter and agleam, but no children's voices broke the brooding silence. Soft rugs cushioned the floor, and costly paintings adorned the walls, while between the folds of rich silken tapestries shone masterpieces in white marble. And in the midst of all the beauty and luxury sat a man and a woman near to each other, yet—apart.

A party of carol singers went up the street singing.

The man looked up when he heard the music.

"To-morrow is Christmas Day," he said, as if he had not thought of it before.

"Yes, to-morrow is Christmas Day," the woman answered listlessly.

"I must write you a check, as usual," said the man, absently.

"Yes, write me a check, as usual," said the woman, without interest.

The man reached out his hand to take up a pen. But the Spirit of Christmas took a crimson rose from a vase nearby and put it between the man's fingers. He lifted the rose and looked at it with wonder in his tired eyes.

"What shall I do with a rose?" he said. "Roses are for youth."

"Or for those with the memories of youth," whispered the woman wistfully.

No one knows how or why it first came to grow in that funny way, but I'll tell you how it goes on growing more and more each year, and why, if you've got an orchard in which it grows, you'll find that the apple-trees get more bunches of mistletoe every winter.

Just as you like chocolates and acid-drops, so do the birds love mistletoe berries, and especially the thrushes.

You've heard of a misadventure. Well, he's called that because he's so fond of these berries—mistle-thrush. See?

Well, when Mr. Dicky has pecked a berry he'll fly off and rob his beak up against the bark of a tree to wipe off any little bit that may still remain on his beak, and in that way, you see, he sows the seed of the mistletoe.

That little seed will sink into the bark, shoot out roots, and by next year there'll be a little sprout of mistletoe. As the years go on, that little sprout will become a big bunch, and then—well, then, I expect, it'll be cut down to be sent to the market for people to buy and hang up in their houses at Christmas-time.

AN ALL-YEAR SPIRIT.

The providing of Christmas cheer for those whose Christmas would otherwise be cheerless is becoming one of the finest of Canadian habits. It is done in many ways: through churches, through Sunday school classes, through charitable organizations, through other organizations which are not constituted primarily for charitable purposes. Nowadays everyone takes a hand in this work. Canada is fortunately situated in having a relatively small proportion of its population in actual want. The average of prosperity is so high that there is no reason why any unfortunate one should be overlooked at the Christmas season.
